WHY ATTEND?
Approval for the North Carolina 1115 Medicaid Waiver is now complete. Four private managed care organizations have been chosen and regional implementation for the Medicaid Standard Plan is set to begin this November with statewide implementation next February. All systems are go, but there are still questions, details and issues to be addressed. Many providers are in the process of contracting with the Prepaid Health Plans (PHPs), credentialing remains, and the Enrollment Brokers preparing to work with individuals to choose their benefit plans. It is a brave new world for NC and our healthcare systems. What are the Pathways 2 Progress? By addressing topics such as Value-based care, Standard Plan operations, progress on the Medicaid Tailored Plan, effective use of technology, service challenges, and the effective utilization of Peer Support, this conference attempts to provide guidance to support stakeholder readiness for a managed care system that integrates all aspects of healthcare.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?
This conference offers trainings that will prepare and support stakeholders at a variety of levels as North Carolina approaches the go-live dates for managed care. This includes: public and private managed care organizations, provider organizations, state and private hospitals, DHHS, advocates, families, individuals with lived experience, and others interested in learning about the evolving system changes. Sessions will address issues of interest to executive leadership, managers, clinicians, and users of services.

The Power of Words: Reframing Human Services to Leverage Support

Why do we talk about human services in the public system like it’s the 18th century? It is time to redirect public thinking. The sector’s communications are stuck in a “charity model” from the past and so is public perception of the value of public human services, which affects everything from adequate funding to fair policies to giving. Today, the demand for a whole person approach with coordinated health and human services is greater than ever. Our speaker, Judith Gethner, Executive Director of Illinois Partners for Human Service, will share a new communications strategy proven to build broader and deeper support for human services by changing the language we use. The power of words cannot be underestimated. You will learn a new way to engage legislators, State government leaders and philanthropists in vital conversations about the power, value and importance of health and human services. This new narrative for the sector, the result of multi-year research by the FrameWorks Institute, a Washington-based communications think tank, is proven to improve understanding and support for the full range of health and human services and the sector’s benefit to society.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

- Discuss public perception concerning the work of human service professionals and those they serve
- Review research based strategies for how to avoid communication traps that cue up misperceptions and biases from the public
- Identify how to create engaging and persuasive communications in the current legislative and public landscape

KEYNOTE:

JUDITH GETHNER,
Executive Director, Illinois Partners for Human Service

Since 2009, Judith has built Illinois Partners for Human Services from a start-up to over 800 human service provider partners located in every county and legislative district throughout Illinois. As a leading voice within the sector, Judith has led a successful campaign to educate service providers on Illinois’ recent budget impasse and other fiscal issues in the state; has informed the political discourse on human services through collaborative advocacy efforts with community organizations, state agencies, elected officials and the private sector; and has been appointed to lend her expertise to numerous government councils and agencies. Judith brings a strong combination of private and nonprofit sector experience to her work.
Succeeding In A Value-Based Health & Human Service Landscape: Keys to Balancing Performance, Measurement, Talent and Capital

North Carolina’s health and human service landscape - both service delivery and financing - is in the midst of evolution. While this evolution looks a bit different depending on the geographic location, consumers served and service specialty, the ‘big themes’ are the same. Changing consumer expectations, conflicting policies and politics, and science and technology are changing the day-to-day realities of consumers with chronic conditions and complex support needs - and the health plans, provider organization, and clinical professionals that serve them.

In this session, OPEN MINDS Chief Executive Officer, Monica Oss, will provide an update on the changes in the health and human landscape that are driving changes in market position and sustainability for specialty provider organizations. She will review the key competencies for executive teams to lead and manage their organizational transformation. In her closing, she will discuss the ‘growth imperative’ and need for size and scale - in particular the talent and financial resources needed for ‘organizational fitness for growth’.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

• Discuss the changing complex consumer landscape
• Review the strategic implications of the evolving market for specialty provider organizations
• Identify key executive competencies for leadership and management transformation
• Review the growth imperative - planning for size and scale

Ms. Oss is well known for her numerous books and articles focused on the strategic and marketing implications of the evolving health and human service field. She has been the keynote speaker at the conferences of numerous national associations and has been published in a wide range of professional journals and trade publications.
10 Steps to Value Based Contracting

This session will offer attendees a very practical way to shift your organizational culture to redefine productivity as a balance between clinical outcomes and cost efficiencies; that is the aim of value-based care. The vision for NC’s Medicaid managed care is that payers will ramp up the percentage of their value-based contractual arrangements with providers from the start of the Standard Plans with the goal to have the majority of the contracts with providers in the Standard Plans and BH/IDD Tailored Plans be value-based.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

• Review the types of alternative reimbursement models, pros and cons, examples and practical “how to’s”
• Identify the 10 steps it takes to develop a successful value-based reimbursement proposal for a payer
• Review how to overcome common barriers to successful VBRs, including how to work with payers
• Describe the lessons learned and best practices, including a North Carolina case study

Deb Adler has more than 20 years’ experience in executive health care roles, serving in a variety of capacities including network executive, quality management executive and chief operating officer. Deb began her care in health care quality and is a recognized leader in value-based contracting and alternative payment models. Deb has facilitated network designs and benefit plan approaches that achieve both quality outcomes and healthcare cost savings. Her consultant supports a broad range of topics including: collaborative care models/medical behavioral integration, provider network functions - contracting, network designs/tiering, recruitment, credentialing, payer positioning and reimbursement strategies.
A New Approach to Care: The Standard Plan

This session will provide the best available, updated information regarding implementation of the Standard Plan for people in the Medicaid system with behavioral health and I/DD needs. It will include a didactic presentation about the particular population of individuals that will be served under the Standard Plan and expectations of whole person care for those individuals. This will be followed by an interactive panel discussion of leaders from the four statewide NC private Standard Plan insurance providers. Each will be presented with a case study scenario for an individual in the mild to moderate population and asked to address how they would be served under the Standard Plan with an eye toward identifying potential “potholes” or systemic failures that we might be able to avoid if we plan for them.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

• Review the types of likely individuals that will qualify for the Standard Plan services
• Discuss the expected number of BH/IDD individuals currently served in the public system crossing over to the Standard Plan and the impact on public system
• Identify how people with behavioral health and IDD needs who are currently receiving services will migrate to the Standard Plan
• Discuss ways to guard against the risk of people “falling through the cracks” as the mild to moderate population under the Standard Plan.

Foundation of a Strong Workforce: Maximizing Individual Potential through Teams

With constant changes in behavioral and physical healthcare, including shifts in reimbursement and workforce shortages, retaining talented staff is becoming more difficult. In North Carolina, there is a shift to value-based purchasing that will define productivity and quality by means of clinical and financial outcomes. This alone is a major culture shift for professionals and direct care staff. The lack of qualified staff is compounding workforce shortages, and the costs related to turnover and replacing staff are astounding. Focusing on the behavioral traits of staff members and utilizing their strengths can alleviate some of these pressures. Creating teams and effective team-building can re-energize your staff and balance workloads to maximize each individual’s potential whether looking at executive management, clinical staff or your organization as a whole. This session will explain how to effectively promote and develop teams and discuss recommendations for identifying roles within those teams.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

• Examine how the organization of teams can deliver better patient experience and higher staff satisfaction
• Analyze the behavioral traits of team members to maximize their potential and improve retention
• Determine how to create a high-functioning team

Treating Trauma in the Family Setting

This session will focus on a Trauma Informed Community (TIC) initiative with the National Council for Behavioral Health used by Pinnacle Family Services (PFS) who utilize two specialized trauma-informed treatments designed to treat children in a family setting. These two evidenced based/evidenced informed models are infused with trauma and resiliency informed practices and have a proven track-record of stabilizing, treating, and keeping children in the family setting - 1) Family Centered Treatment (FCT) is an in-home service designed to either prevent an out of home placement or facilitate successful step down from an out-of-home placement and 2) Fostering Solutions (FS) is an intensive Therapeutic Foster Care model. With each of these models, PFS is integrating training and interventions for the dual diagnosed child/youth dealing with mental health and I-DD challenges. PFS has a strong collaboration with NC Start with a goal of continuing to serve this dual diagnosed population.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

• Identify the core components of the FTC and FS model and understand how these components treat trauma with children and their families
• Identify the 7 domains of becoming a trauma informed agency and understand how to implement the domains in your agency
• Discuss the adjustments, trainings and interventions that have been made to the FCT and FS models to effectively treat the MH/IDD child population

SPEAKERS: DEVAULT CLEVENG, Executive Director of Business Development/Clinical Operations at Pinnacle Family Services; JEANNIE KING, Executive Director Foster Care at Pinnacle Family Services; SAFI MARTIN, Executive Director West at Pinnacle Family Services

Developing Measures for Performance Management and Continuous Improvement

What data do you have to show how your program is doing? This session will provide participants with a simple method for administrators and program managers to understand how to develop measures that answer this question. Using Results Based Accountability’s (RBA) performance accountability framework, participants will engage in a process that guides in the selection of headline performance measures that answer the questions 1) how much did we do? 2) How well did we do it? and; 3) How are our clients and patients better off? Participants will also be introduced to a disciplined process for making data-driven decisions for performance management and improvement.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

• Review how to use data to track program results
• Discuss how to develop program performance measures that identify: how much did we do? how well did we do it? and how are our clients better off?
• Review a common language for distinguishing program performance measures from community indicators
• Review continuous improvement questions for performance management

SPEAKER: DEITRE EPPS, Performance Improvement and Leadership Development Consultant, Race4Equity
Telepsychiatry to Improve Access to Evidence-Based Care: A NC Experience

The lack of access to psychiatric services due to the shortage, and maldistribution of providers, especially psychiatrists has resulted in patients going to hospital emergency departments to seek services resulting in long ED lengths of stays. It is widely believed that the use of telepsychiatry has the potential to mitigate the workforce shortage that directly affects access to care, especially in remote and underserved areas. The North Carolina Statewide Telepsychiatry Program (NC-STeP) was developed by the state legislature to assure that if an individual experiencing an acute behavioral health crisis enters an emergency department of a hospital anywhere in the state, they can receive timely, evidence-based psychiatric treatment. Telepsychiatry can also address the difficult challenge of the integration of science-based treatment practices into routine clinical care.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

• Review the demonstrated benefits of using telepsychiatry
• Identify the infrastructure needs to implement telepsychiatry services on a statewide level
• Review how NC-STeP is addressing problems in areas of access to quality (evidence-based) mental health services.
• Describe how NC-STeP model is now being used to provide care in community-based settings

SPEAKER: SY ATEZAZ SAEED, M.D., M.S., FACPSYCH, Professor and Chairman Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Medicine, Brody School of Medicine, East Carolina University.

A snapshot of emerging practices, specialists and endorsements that are occurring and some forecasts regarding peer support will also be discussed. A brief review of the initiative to develop a specific Department of Labor Standard Occupational Classification for Peer Support Specialists and the benefits of developing National Guidelines for Peer support Supervision will also be covered.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

Value Based Contracting to Address the Opioid Epidemic

Joining together treatment and performance contracts is important in our changing managed care environment. Partners Behavioral Health Management has used federal and state grant funds to develop performance driven contracts with opioid providers. Expanding this evidence-based practice is critical for effectively treating those with Opioid Use Disorder.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

- Review how Medication Assisted Treatment is the gold standard for addressing Opioid Use Disorder
- Discuss the process for value based contracting and learn from our missteps
- Identify practical material on cost-modeling and outcome measurement
- Define the Hub and Spoke model to expand local availability of treatment services

Coming Together: Addressing Discharge Barriers from the ED and Inpatient Setting

Key stakeholders came together and identified a critical community need - youth who remain in an ED or inpatient setting longer than medically indicated due to significant discharge barriers; including: parent/guardian refusal to pick up, the need for unidentified specialized treatment and long wait lists for appropriate care. Stakeholders developed a pilot program to put supports in place for these youth and their families to reduce the discharge barriers. These supports include: crisis response/crisis management, case management and linkage, brief outpatient therapy, and discharge planning. In November 2018, the service was approved as an In Lieu of Service Definition by NC Medicaid.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

- Discuss how a community can come together and develop services and supports to meet an identified need
- Review the importance of stakeholder relationships in meeting the needs of a community
- Review the program’s successes, challenges, and lessons learned
